As a Project Manager at Epic, you’ll be the face of the company for our customers from the time they purchase Epic software up until the time that they’re using it successfully. You’ll use your organization and communication skills to build meaningful relationships with your customers and guide them through a software implementation that will improve patient care.

You’ll be challenged to learn quickly as you become an expert in Epic’s software and then apply your knowledge by helping your customer counterparts develop the skills they’ll need in order to be responsible for their Epic software during and after the installation. You’ll work face to face with Epic customers and spend more than half of your time onsite at some of the leading healthcare organizations in the country. You’ll also pick up new technical skills – never fear, we’ll provide all the training you need.

We hire people who can handle real responsibility, and then give it to them. Your input is taken seriously – you can expect to have ownership of meaningful and challenging projects early on, and have many opportunities to grow as a leader for both our customers and our company.

Epic’s campus is located just outside of Madison, WI, a city that regularly ranks among America’s “Best Places to Live for Young Professionals” and “Best Cities for Families.” Whether you’re an avid ultimate Frisbee player, love the idea of biking to work, or enjoy challenging your friends to a game of D&D, Madison is full of great things to do.
