Lauren's Summary: I graduated magna cum laude from The University of the South in Sewanee, TN with honors and distinction within my major in May 2013.

Throughout my undergraduate career, I immersed in community outreach - worked with organizations such as Second Harvest Food Bank of Middle Tennessee, Blue Monarch Women's Shelter, Gay Men's Health Crisis, and Cause for Paws. My passion is in community education and advocacy to end sexual and domestic violence.

In Fall 2013, I will begin a two year Master's Degree program in Community Development and Action at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, TN. My future career ambitions include community research and working with nonprofit organizations within my area of interest, such as community sexual assault centers and the Rape, Abuse & Incest National Network.

David' Summary: As a student of the liberal arts at Sewanee: The University of the South in Tennessee, I acquired a degree in English with a minor in Business. The academic curriculum taught me debate, research, analytics, writing across varying genres, accounting and finance, advanced Excel and public speaking skills.

Summer internships in banking, research with faculty to gather background information for a book, and in DC for a Maryland Congresswoman have honed my experiences in the working world and allowed me to apply my skills and classroom knowledge.

My ambition now is focused on policy research on issues now facing Congress or with think tanks and congressional advisory companies. I have conducted research on the Affordable Health Care Act, Immigration, Climate Change, and International Relations in the Middle East.

I have written articles for the college newspaper, my hometown newspaper and have blogged, utilized Twitter and Facebook to assist in promotion of campus initiatives.

Carl's Summary: As long as I can remember I have had athletic equipment in my hands – baseball, basketball, and soccer balls, as well as swim gear and tennis rackets. A four season athlete in high school and almost as much in college, I excelled in classes as well and never lost sight of the practicality of an employable degree although I secretly aspired to be a professional sports figure!

I have a degree in History as well as considerable experience in coaching and peer mentorship on and off the field. As a leader in FCA and Young Life, I have encouraged my teammates to aspire to use the discipline learned through sports to life skills. I hope to now mentor middle and high school kids in the classroom and on the field.

Rachel's Summary: A C'12 Journalism major at the University of Rochester, and now a creative and hardworking young professional focused on growing in the field of public relations. Led two 80+ student organizations while also studying as a full-time student. Strong written and oral communication skills with a passion for public speaking. Extensive use of social media.

Eager to acquire part-time contract assignments in proofing, editing, article research, and subject interviews while currently enrolled part-time in an online MFA program.

Elise's Summary: Enthusiastic and focused student graduating in May with in-depth agency and industry experience and a focus in advertising and the arts, specifically dance and theatre. In college I served on the Executive Committee for a yearly student-run dance extravaganza and each year moved up in leadership roles to finance manager, choreographer, marketing coordinator and president of the organization.

Interested in an entry-level position with an advertising agency in account management or media planning in New York City; currently preparing to move to the city post-graduation. Also qualified and experienced with arts administration and arts and theater education with elementary school children; extensive volunteer service in classrooms and after-school programs.
